POLICE TO QUESTIONS SLAIN VETERAN'S EX-FIANCÉE

happy. She was very pretty and of medium height.

"One night in September I asked Mr. Buchanan how his girl friend was, and when they were going to be married. He said:

"I am not going to marry her."

"Then he sent me a little box of gifts to return, and I handed the package to the experimenter. I looked at the address, and I am fairly positive it was Miss McKenna's."

THIRD GIRL IN CASE.

George Sullivan, a fellow-lodger, told of seeing a girl in front of the house several months ago as he was going out. Her description, as given by Sullivan, resembled that of the young woman described by Mrs. O'Leary.

"Is she still there?" she asked, according to Sullivan.

"What?" he said.

"Is Mr. Buchanan still there?"

"Yes," was the reply, whereupon the girl walked on.

The sister of the first United Presbyterian Church in the South End, in which Buchanan was active, declared today the veteran must have been alive between the hours of six and eight o'clock Friday night.

He said he left the church at six o'clock, returning at 8:20 to find the place. Members of the church were preparing boxes of clothing to send to the families of striking miners in Cape Breton.

On his return the sexton said he found six new pairs of children's stockings, which had been thrust through the mail slot in the door of the church. According to Charles Buchanan, brother of the murdered man, the stockings were purchased by the latter the previous day for this purpose.

Miss McKenna, who filed the charges for a theological student named Buchanan, said she saw him on a vacation trip to his home at Cape Breton, where he lived at No. 1175 Cass avenue, Detroit, after leaving last November, according to friends at the church.

It is thought that Miss McKenna was the girl introduced to Mrs. O'Leary by Buchanan under another name. It was in September that she broke off her engagement to him, returning the police he had given her and that she went to Detroit.

The authorities are unable to explain his reason for introducing the girl under a different name.

Miss McKenna, Buchanan's former fiancée, when found in Detroit today, said she knew of no enemies who might wish to harm Buchanan.

Miss McKenna said she and Buchanan were engaged for about a year and that she went to Detroit shortly after ending the engagement several months ago, she had not seen Buchanan, she said, since their engagement was broken.

On Monday or Tuesday of last week the sexton of the First United Presbyterian Church said he met Buchanan on the street. The veteran did not look well, he said. Asked what he thought of him, he said that other things were troubling him.

Charles Buchanan revealed today that his brother had a recurrence of the illness which he said resulted from a strain while working in the mine in Cape Breton. Recovering from the first illness, Buchanan had Christ-

MORBID CROWD VIEWING SLAIN MAN'S BODY

View of the morbidly curious gathered at scene of Waverley's chloroform death mystery. The crowd was starting down at the body of the victim, Alexander Buchanan, a World War veteran. The crowds began to gather soon after the body was found, and remained until it was removed by the authorities. Many women were among those attracted to the gruesome scene of the tragedy.

mas dinner with his mother at Belmont, but the following Saturday was taken sick again and was treated by Dr. Riley of that town. His brother stated he had never fully recovered from the effects of the poison.

The authorities were confident that the clue would be obtained from the mask, a new type issued by the United States Navy, said to have come from the Charleston Navy Yard.

FINGERPRINTS SOUGHT.

Equipment of this kind is used not only on receipt, so that it should prove fairly easy to determine to whom the mask was given at the Navy Yard, and how it passed into the possession of the murderer.

In the belief that fingerprints would be found on the metal of the mask, it was taken to the office of the State police at the State House for photographing today.

According to Chief of Police ARRY of Belmont, the murder of Buchanan was a "perfect crime" and did not apparently with conscience and skill, and so deftly was the former soldier handled, that his clothing was not even disarranged.

Assistant District Attorney Charles Lawrence of Middlesex County, who has taken charge of the investigation, declared that the murder was the work of several men at least.

Buchanan's hands, still clad in gloves, were bound together and then brought down under the right knee, where they were tied. He was gagged and the mask put on over the face. The mask was a new type Navy mask, said to be for use in covering tunnels or submarines, or in the case of fire, and differs radically from that in use by soldiers overseas during the war.

The helmet is surrounded by a metal chamber, from which two rubber tubes lead to the respiratory apparatus in the face certain, suspended from the top of the helmet, was placed in the metal chamber, and running down the tubes was attached by Buchanan's helmet the mask was firmly strapped.

MANY THEORIES ADVANCED.

According to Jack McQueen, a hunch of Buchanan, who saw him the night before he went to Waverley, Miss McKenna returned to Cap-dreton on a visit and met another man. She wrote "Sandy" as Buchanan was known—a letter in which she stated she liked the other man better than Buchanan, and returned him his ring. The service man, in turn, sent back the little ring. Miss McKenna said much during the course of their affair.

Although it was not his friend, Jack McQueen was the only man Buchanan cared for, evidence has been collected by the police recently, at least, he had turned his attention elsewhere.

It was reported in Waverley that Buchanan was in the habit of meeting a young woman in Waverley other than his sister, the McLean household nurse, from one visit to another in was returning to her home, which was killed.

It was reported that one of the taxi drivers at the Waverley station told the authorities that Buchanan several occasions driven Buchanan to the grounds of the School for People Minded at Waverley. The hospital authorities have been asked to attempt to identify the man.

Another theory advanced today, and which the authorities are inclined to consider, is that Buchanan may have been the victim of insane patients at the McLean Hospital. It was seen visiting a pretty nurse and sister—and, according to the theory, may have unconsciously aroused the jealousy of some of the men patients, who seized Buchanan as he was taking a short cut through the hospital.

TRAINING GAS MASK.

This theory, however, would fail to account satisfactorily for the gas mask which was found, and was found at Charleston, as evidenced by the letters "O. H." representing this Naval district. Chief of the Belmont police, with State Inspector O'Neil, after taking the mask to the State House to be photographed, planned to visit the Navy Yard in an attempt to learn to whom it was issued.

According to Charles Buchanan, brother of the dead man, Sandy was in fear of his life, but was always found the door wide open and survived the room from the corridor before sunrise.

Last Christmas Eve he told his brothers that two men forced an entrance to his room and forced him to drink poison. Charles said that Sandy was undoubtedly ill at the time, but no one was called to the door.

TWO SAVED AS SURRENDERED FLAMES SHEEP BUILDING

Man and Woman Are Found in House in Providence During an Extinguishing Fire.

Providence, April 6.—A gas leak and a must, situated on the upper floor of the three-story building at Waterman and Dean streets, were reached when fire started in the cellar of the Providence building on the first floor.

Sergeant James A. Glynn of the Providence fire department, forced the front door and secured to safety Mrs. Frances Bennett, and Louis Koneles, who was asleep on the third floor.

The flames had swept through the building to the roof when the first man arrived. Mrs. Bennett and Koneles were the only persons in the building.

The fire started at No. 22 Dexter street, Joseph Case, 103 Dexter street, and Joseph Bader, 103 Dexter street, were in the building with Margaret Glynn and searched for accounts.

The fire started in the Store Company, where a large supply of kerosene had been stored. The fire spread from water, and furnishings in the restaurant were also badly damaged.

The boy had given himself up, his word was saluted for the time being.

Never, in the memory of the oldest policeman on the force has there been such general thanksgiving about police headquarters, as when this word was received.

After defying the Charleston day police for a week, during which time he drove more than a score of machines through Charleston streets at a dizzying speed, the unique juvenile delinquent had decided to "reform" on account of his mother, who is aged and frail.

Sitting at the wheel of high-powered automobile, young Rhea, drivers, suddenly with one hand, had dashed through the rows of uniformed men at a gallop as if the policemen were no more than straws.

The police have fired volley after volley into the air, or given chase, as he sped by. "Jimmy's" answer was to turn his head and grin derisively at the hapless pursuers.

OFFICERS EVERYWHERE.

Thousands of interested spectators have lined the Charleston streets to witness the spectacle of the boy making his way with the police trailing far behind him.

Last night the sidewalks of Bunker Hill street were thronged to their capacity.

Three officers stationed every few feet along the street. A score of motorcycles and high-powered automobiles loaded with police men, on foot and on horseback, were in the streets. Yet despite these preparations, young Rhea drove off without a scratch.

Police scattered right and left. One officer fired several shots in the air, but the boy did not stop. He was driving a high-powered car, and was speeding over the cobble streets at more than thirty miles an hour, the boy quickly shook off his pursuers. The crowds along the sidewalks were hushed—the police were charged and angry.

MOTORCYCLES LOCKED UP.

To add insult to injury, all motorcycles, police and chauffeurs of police cars were ordered to stand by their machines at all times while on duty, or else leave their machines on the street and walk.

The boy boldly threatened to steal a police patrol and drive through the city.

Police motorcycles, instead of being parked in front of police station headquarters, were now locked up, while the motorcycle officers are busy making reports to their superiors.

It was reported that the boy had stolen a car from the Haymarket Hotel (hospital) was made by young Rhea, who was driving a high-powered car, as the boy was stepping into the driver's seat. The "speed king" took to the beach.

LOTS OF THUNDER.

After his Sunday night exploit, the boy announced his intention of returning to his home in Charleston. He had a number of members of his "gang" that he is worried about his mother, who lives in Charleston.

"I just did this stuff for the thrill. Now I'm getting so tame here I can't do it. The cops can't catch me so where is the fun?"

"It was a great game while it lasted and I had a lot of thrills but my mother is not very well and I am afraid it will hurt her if I keep it up so I'm going back to Shirley."

While the police was recounting his exploits in the group of admirers, the police were searching high and low for his car.

SOME NEWSPAPERS.

"I was sleeping up at the North Station in empty passenger cars," he explained, "when suddenly the police came and they took me away. I was engaged in stealing cars and was caught by the police."

"I needed some money from time to time," he said, "so I went to the North Station in empty passenger cars. I didn't try to sell even one of the cars until I was run by the police and used up all the gasoline in the cars. I just left them standing on the street."

"I guess I stole about twenty, altogether. I saw one of the cars standing in front of Tech, three or four days ago and the car is still there. I haven't seen it since."

HAD ENOUGH, HE SAYS.

"Saturday, I stole four cars and drove all around and had a great day. Then yesterday I stole a couple more and used up the gasoline in them. I've never had any money to buy gasoline and I wouldn't try to sell the cars."

"I guess I've had enough of it. I'll go back to Shirley and finish my time." The youngster, a small boy with a white shirt and a white collar, was escorted by the police to the station. The boy whistled the car away up the street.

$25 AMERICAN HONOR FOR PRIZE TO MAN WHO IS 80 EDUCATIONAL ENDLOR

Eighty years of age and a first prize winner of the Boston City Club tournament, the banquet will be in honor of his appointment as lieutenant colonel in the Medical Reserve Corps and in appreciation of his service in the cause of Jewish education and Palestine development.

The committee of arrangements includes Albert Hirsch, chairman, Samuel L. Davis, Joseph Rudnick, A. S. Hirsch, treasurer, James D. Gintis, Max Shoolman, S. H. Waldstein, Jacob Babinovitz and Eliza D. Stone.

Edith Meyer, treasurer, chief rabbi of Petersburg, who addressed a conference of the leading rabbis and officials of congregations in Boston last night, refused to talk about political matters.

When asked as to the economic situation, the chairman, however, had volumes to relate to Boston Jews about the deplorable conditions of the Jews there.

"There is no comparison between the two regimes—that of the Czars and of the Soviets. It is like comparing a toothache and a headache."

Today's limerick is about the view discovered at a business or school in the news doing over to the Boston Public Garden, and was around to two feet of water.

No doubt you will all see them do this and wonder how they could get through from such a position, or, shoring the fact that they had been in the water for some time.

An interesting thing in connection with the completed limerick of today's paper is that Mrs. Morton of Somerville, N. H., thirty-five years ago, was the first woman to win a prize for the completion, which indicates that "There is nothing new under the sun."

To the limerick writer, Mrs. Morton wrote, "I have been a poet for the completion and wrote it about a year ago. It was published in the Boston Herald, and was where about 1900."

From Worcester came the following letter, written by Chester F. Silkenstein of Hallow street:

"I have just read your limerick and have been much amused by it. I have been a poet for the completion and wrote it about a year ago. It was published in the Boston Herald, and was where about 1900."

HIGHBALL JOHN ALIENISTS STILL WORKING ON "LOVE WOLF" TO JAIL

Sentence of Month at Plymouth Jail Affirmed by Appeal Court

Highball John Koller, for fifty years a well known Boston hotel waiter, must go to jail.

Judge George H. Burdick of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals has handed down an opinion confirming the sentence by Judge James M. Morton of the District Court of "Highball John" to one month in the Plymouth jail for selling liquor to prohibition agents.

The higher court's mandate will, however, not be issued until some late next month.

The higher court made a resolution agent verified that he went into "Highball John's" restaurant at No. 125 Dartmouth street in October, 1922, and said:

"It is this the justly celebrated 'Highball John'."

"Well, I want one of your famous highballs."

Evidence was then put in to show that John Koller had sold a highball to a prohibition agent.

The prohibition agent was recalled to the stand and the second time he said that he had sold a highball to a prohibition agent.

"I want one of your famous highballs, and a pint of whiskey," said the prohibition agent.

ALBANY APPOINTED TO EXAMINE JAMES E. WALLER, the "LOVE WOLF" are still working on their report, and the court has not yet decided today in Superior Criminal Court.

Must Wait Until Mother Can Be Questioned

Albany appointed to examine James E. Waller, the "Love Wolf" are still working on their report, and the court has not yet decided today in Superior Criminal Court.

After three counsel for Waller, informed the court that he had sought vainly to get the "Love Wolf" army record from Waller, but that army officials declared the records beyond his inspection unless the court ordered the records necessary. Judge Bishop said he would take this matter under consideration.

The alienists are awaiting the arrival of Waller's mother from Hoboken, N. J., that they may question her regarding the life history of her son.

While the proceedings were under way in court, Waller, held in the detention house, showed after prisoners, confining himself to smoking a cigarette and pacing back and forth.

PEPPING UP THE SPRING DIET

Now that Spring is here and we no longer get liberal doses of our wintered apples to pop up our wintered appetites, the housewife must find a way to pep up the usual to solve for the family pique that comes at the dinner table. There is no better way than to pep up the diet with fresh, crisp, and juicy foods. I have been using spaghettis, macaroni and egg noodles in place of potatoes lately, and they are very popular. Then, too, I always eat plenty of fruit. Fresh fruits, these foods, since physicians tell us that they are among the best for peping up the body, both for building up young bodies and for giving strength and vigor to the whole family.

I am glad to especially recommend Mueller's products, for one reason because they are made from fresh, clean, white, heart of the wheat, and because they contain just the food elements that build flesh, tissue, red blood and bone.

I have given you many recipes for these products and I have seen the Mueller-Macaroni people who I would be glad to send to any one who comes to write to me for them. They help you to serve many delicious combinations of Mueller's products. For example, macaroni, beef, egg, onion, sausage, mushrooms, tomato, and a little bit of butter.

While most of us are familiar with macaroni, egg noodles are a newer thing. They are made from a special kind of wheat which is a better kind of wheat than the one we are used to. They are made from a special kind of wheat which is a better kind of wheat than the one we are used to. They are made from a special kind of wheat which is a better kind of wheat than the one we are used to.

I really think you would find it an excellent plan to have these three Mueller products in stock at your pantry shelves, and you can safely do this since the Mueller people will let you have a sample of each while the cart is in your house. They will let you have a sample of each while the cart is in your house. They will let you have a sample of each while the cart is in your house.

NEW ENGLAND EGGS FOR NEW ENGLAND HOUSEWIVES

Those of you who follow my motto (State either on the air or in the Boston Evening American) will remember that a little over two weeks ago I promised that eggs would be lower right away. It isn't now to say, "I told you so," but I am sure that by this time that you all realize that the prophecy has come true and that of all we can expect eggs to remain at this rock bottom price for at least six weeks more.

I am hoping that in buying your eggs you will find that they are the product of the New England hen, for she has been working ever since last fall to make this drop in price possible for you, and surely we should show appreciation of her efforts. Really, as particular housewives we should all boost the product of our own section of the country. Wisely, we let's admit the slogan, "New England Eggs for New England Housewives." I am sure that every one of you will be only too glad to see that New England eggs, New England potatoes, and New England milk are used in your kitchen.

I have been buying New England eggs from the dealer since last fall, and I don't think I have found any better eggs anywhere else. They are very fresh, as they are delivered from nearby sources, and each one of them is as good as the next. I am sure that you would put down in your notebook that New England eggs are worth the extra amount of money put in to get them. I am sure that you would put down in your notebook that New England eggs are worth the extra amount of money put in to get them. SHEBO

A Virile, Human Story of a Girl of Today

The Story Thus Far

LIKE a tired girl to a ship's rigging came Barbara Brown out of the New Year's blizzard to the jewel house in Ryneck, where A. B. Hardman was wont to indulge his overland fancy for youth and beauty. She stayed that night and woke to find herself mistress of the place—at a price. Rather than pay the price, Barbara, one child night, stole the gardener's clothes, fled from the house of tribulations and found herself on the high road. She takes a chance in a guessing contest for $50 in gold.

"WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS—now, there's a good burg this time of year."

"I've been there," she informed him stiffly. On the spur of the moment, she added: "In fact, that's where I'm bound."

"Well, well. Too bad I'm hittin' West. I'd like to hit the cinders with you."

"I don't mind walking alone," she assured him, a shade warmly.

"Walkin'? Don't tell me you're gonna walk to White Sulphur Springs?"

"I can't very well ride," she said. "I've spent my fifty."

He snickered in his throat.

"I can see you're an old-timer, all right. Didn't mean ridin' the cushions. Nor yet the rods either, brother."

They went at a railway siding now. This was as good place as another to get rid of him. Barbara started down the diverging rail bed. He followed. His plan by now was a towering tree.

"Listen, kid," he appealed. "I like ya. I don't know why, but I do. I can't help it. Maybe it's your youth. Or something. I guess mebbe I hit the road when I was younger than you. It's no bed o' roses, the road. I wanna tell ya."

"I guess I can take care of myself," she said. She was suspicious of the metamorphosis into a sympathetic camerado of this vicious vagrant. Was there really a kinship of the road? Was there a brotherhood of the trail? Perhaps she should have split her jelly beans stake with Kenosha.

"Maybe I ought to have divided that fifty with you," she safely offered.

"Oh, that's all right. Let bygones be bygones. No hard feelings, like you said on the truck."

"I'm sorry I kicked you in the stomach," she deplored.

"Shucks! Probably just the impulse of the moment, eh?"

QUIGLEY DEMANDS 20 CENT "GAS"

Guard Chapman in Secret Cell to Balk Rescuers

URGES FULLER MOVE FOR 20 CENT 'GAS'

Gasoline should be selling for twenty cents a gallon in Greater Boston, Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea declared today, in a letter to Governor Fuller.

Branding the recent report of the State Commission on the Necessity of Life as disappointing, he said the prevailing price of 24 cents was not justified, and asked the Governor to initiate legislative action to remedy the situation.

Mayor Quigley suggested his request with figures which he obtained in the summer of 1924, when he started municipal gasoline stations in Chelsea and sold at 5 cents under the prevailing scale.

The spectacular campaign against profiteers in "gas" resulted in a general price reduction at the time.

He believes that prompt and vigorous action by the legislature can avert excessive prices at the beginning of the season have a salutary effect upon the gasoline dealers for the rest of the year.

When Mayor Quigley undertook his crusade gasoline was selling for 22 cents a gallon. He sold it at 17 cents a gallon, and paid the purchase cost and distribution expenses.

An appropriate reduction from 24 cents, he pointed out today, would mean 20-cent gas in a very short time.

Quigley's letter to the Governor says:

"Since this a problem of national scope, it is undoubtedly the duty of the Federal Government to cope with it. But if the Washington authorities are negligent or dilatory, the State may properly exercise its sovereign right to protect its citizens from exploitation. After the State has led and the nation has followed in progressive, humanitarian legislation, Massachusetts has never hesitated to assert her leadership when the opportunity arose."

"Such an opportunity now presents itself to you as the chief executive of this commonwealth, Massachusetts, with the findings of the Commission on the Necessity of Life as a foundation, and should take prompt action against such profiteering."

"I am sure that you will take the price of gasoline within your borders."

FAIR CO-EDS ARE HIT BY CUPID'S DART

Bessie Wentworth, and (below) Josephine Hamblin, B. U. co-eds who soon are to be married. The God of Love has been busy at the Back Bay seat of higher education, even the faculty members not being proof against Cupid's darts, two instructors and the Practical Arts School librarian admitting to the soft impeachment.

B. U. GIRLS PLAN NEW PARIS FAD FOR SUMMER WEDDINGS

Cupid is having a busy and prosperous time at Boston University this year.

The latest victim of the blind It is Bessie Wentworth, senior at the School of Education, who announces her engagement to Josephine Hamblin, M. I. T., 22, electrical engineer at present.

"Sometime in June," she admits. Another co-ed whose left finger tells a story all its own is Josephine Hamblin, senior at the College of Liberal Arts, where she is also president of the Sociological Club.

A student of sociology and deeply concerned in the welfare of society, Miss Hamblin predicts the new factor in its continuance.

At the School of Medicine romance has blossomed forth once more in the engagement of Helen Olivia Prince to Hollis Hamblin, M.D., both are members of the graduating class and junior intern at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital, Miss Prince hails from Providence, R. I. Hamblin comes from Natick, Mass.

Nor have the fair members of the faculty remained untouched by the power that sways the universe. Miss Helen Eddott, physical instructor at the College of Practical Arts and Letters, and Miss Maria Coffey, librarian at the same college, are quite equally interested in romance and matrimony. And so, also, is Miss Lucie Stone, instructor at C. L. A.

THIRTY-SIX NINES ADMITTED IN MASS. INTERCITY LEAGUE

14 MORE TEAMS SOUGHT

The Massachusetts Intercity Baseball League has admitted thirty-six amateur baseball nines into membership in the organization, and is considering the applications for admission of ten more clubs.

It is the desire of the league officials to start the season with a circuit of fifty teams. Any nine interested in the organization should communicate with President Joseph F. Leary, Jr., at Montpelier, Vermont, before the next meeting, which will be held April 21 at the Quincy House.

The league already admitted has been divided up in four divisions. All are from Greater Boston or towns north of the Hub.

The officials wishing to stimulate diamond interest in the southern section of the State, would like to have from teams in and around Taunton, Fall River and New Bedford. They would also be pleased to secure enough teams to Worcester County to form a separate division of clubs in that section.

The arrangement of teams to date is as follows:

EAGLE SQUAD STARTS SOUTH WEDNESDAY

A squad of sixteen Boston College baseball players will leave for the South this Wednesday under the guidance of Coach Jack Slattery.

The nine will play its first game of the season and incidentally its first under direction of Slattery against Vicksburg at Philadelphia on Saturday afternoon.

B. C. will have some stiff opposition in the Dixie invasion, and should be fortunate to return home with an even break as far as wins are concerned.

The team will play practice games with Penn Thursday and Friday and on Monday will tackle Georgetown at Washington, a decisive effort at argument, since the Hilltoppers have been out for more than two and a half months and have been victorious in all of their games to date.

Two games with the Quantico Marines in Virginia follow the C. C. clash, and then the Eagles will take on Williams and Mary and the Navy. The Navy and W. & M. are newcomers on the Maroon and Old schedule.

The local nine opens its home schedule Thursday, April 22, against Fitch College at University Heights and plays St. John's University later that week.

Coach Slattery has already cut his squad to thirty-three. Another small cut will be made within the month, possibly before the team goes South.

Those who remain are, Captain Gus Wilson and Mandeville, Bill Cronin and Buck Finnegan, Ed Finnegan, Fred Monahan, Herb Shugart and Clinton, Sonny Bradley and Clay Haley, St. Pete Cottrell and Shockey Kellison, Elmer Darling, Jimmy McManus, Cronin, Al Dumas, Mike Durant and Jack Drake, Ed Tom, O'Brien, O'Neil, Joe McMenamin and Joe Eddin Mulligan, Omer Murphy, Andy Correll, Lefty Shaw, Steve Bradley, Malone and Martin Peterson.

The first Cathedral run was held in 1920 under the supervision of John J. Magee, now famous track coach of Boston College, and former U. S. Olympic athlete trainer.

The race has steadily grown not only in number of contestants, but also in public interest. The event has always been held on the famous B. A. Marathon classic on Patriots Day.

Gardner Alton T. Fuller, showing considerable interest in athletic competition, has presented the Cathedral race committee with a beautiful trophy, a handsome mantle clock which will be the reward of the runner making the best time. Mayor Curley has also donated a trophy, which will be the reward of the first runner to break the tape. Special prizes have been donated by John J. Magee for the first Cathedral Y. M. C. A. boy to finish and by Rep. W. H. Hayes for the first South End who comes home.

An added attraction for the local South End boys will be a match presented by Rep. John I. Fitzgerald to the boy of the district making the best time over the course.

The M. J. O'Connell Post, No. 76, American Legion organization of Boston Plain, will hold their annual road race on the morning of April 20. This event always gets underway promptly at 10 o'clock to enable the spectators to have an opportunity to witness the Boston Marathon event in the afternoon.

Entries will be accepted by Manager William H. Garter, No. 129 South street, Jamaica Plain.

The Georgian Court College

Run by the Sisters of Mercy, It Makes Useful to Hundreds What Once Was "a Rich Man's Extravagance"

More than thirty years ago the late George J. Gould began building up his magnificent estate at Lakewood, New Jersey. A great park of several hundred acres he completely surrounded by an iron fence twelve feet high. At one end is the palatial residence in which he lived with his children. A quarter of a mile away is "The Court," a building which is a great athletic and residential palace.

It contains an enormous indoor court for horseback riding, with winter tennis courts in the centre. There are squash courts, racquet courts, a great marble swimming pool, lounging rooms for men and for women, and many bedrooms for guests. The estate includes polo fields, golf links, enormous greenhouses. The grounds are most magnificently laid out with rose gardens, sunken gardens, an artificial lake supplied by water from Lake Carausio, magnificent fountains and statues.

In short, Mr. Gould started out to build, in the pine forests of Lakewood, most healthful region within easy reach of New York City, the most comfortable and magnificent home that money could provide for his wife and his seven children, AND HE SUCCEEDED.

Undoubtedly many, as they saw all this luxury and magnificence, looking through the high gold-plated iron fence that cost enough to build half a dozen comfortable homes, said to themselves, "WHAT TERRIFIC EXTRAVAGANCE," and some perhaps added, "That's enough to make a man into a Socialist."

It is not, however, a thing to make a SENSIBLE man into anything but a SENSIBLE MAN.

There was a time when the first automobiles, costing ten thousand dollars each, were first seen on the roads driven by idle-rich young men. Foolish people said, "What criminal extravagance," and even scattered nails and glass to puncture tires. But the building of those expensive automobiles was the work that led up to the cheap cars that now carry millions of men and women to and from their daily work more cheaply than they could travel by railroad, and that give pleasure and health to tens of millions.

So it is with Georgian Court, and with the Gould millions, spent on what was called "A terribly extravagant spending of money certain to spoil the children for whom the money was spent."

George Gould is dead and gone, the members of his family are scattered, some in France, some in England, some in America. What was once the luxurious home of one single family is now transformed into an admirable well-managed college for young girls, called the Georgian Court College, of Lakewood, N. J. The great rows of box stalls formerly occupied by expensive horses, have been torn out and replaced by a complete up-to-date chemical laboratory. The magnificent quarters built by Mr. Gould for his family and his guests are occupied by the teachers and the students of Georgian Court College.

What was built for a few children will provide a splendid college home year after year for ambitious young women, studying under the best of health conditions, in the centre of a great estate, in the mild air of the Lakewood pine forests, and within easy reach of New York City with its concerts, opera, and other educational possibilities.

Thus you see the transformation in a rich man's AP- PARENT extravagance, which might better be called a demonstration, misgranted or otherwise, of his affection for his children. A few years pass, and what seemed extravagance for a few becomes a perfectly appropriate, complete, admirable and well-fitted home for more than a hundred young women students and the faculty teaching them.

Nothing REALLY WELL DONE in this world is wasted. Time and history prove it.

The kings of France built just across the River Seine, opposite their palaces, on the little island, what is now the famous Palace of the Louvre. It gets the name "Louvre" from an old French word meaning a place where the king went to hunt his wolves.

That part of Paris, now covered with streets, shops, hotels and the Grand boulevards, was a wild forest where the king went hunting.

Other kings changed the simple lodge for wolf hunting into a magnificent palace that stands today, a possession of the PEOPLE of the French Republic, filled with their precious art treasures, including the Venus of Milo and Leonardo da Vinci's wonderful "Joconda."

What was once extravagance of French kings has become the education and inspiration and possession of all the French people.

And what has happened to the Louvre in Paris has happened to various palaces of the former German Kaiser in his country.

While the Georgian Court College is managed by the Sisters of Mercy, it is non-sectarian as regards the religion of the students. Girls of all religions are welcome, and well cared for under the supervision of the sisters, viz., Mother Cecilia at the head, with a complete and admirable staff of teachers. Those that want any information may write to MOTHER CECILIA, the head sister, or to MOTHER MARY JOHN, the dean of Georgian Court College, at Lakewood, New Jersey.

Radio Through the Earth

That Imponderable Ether

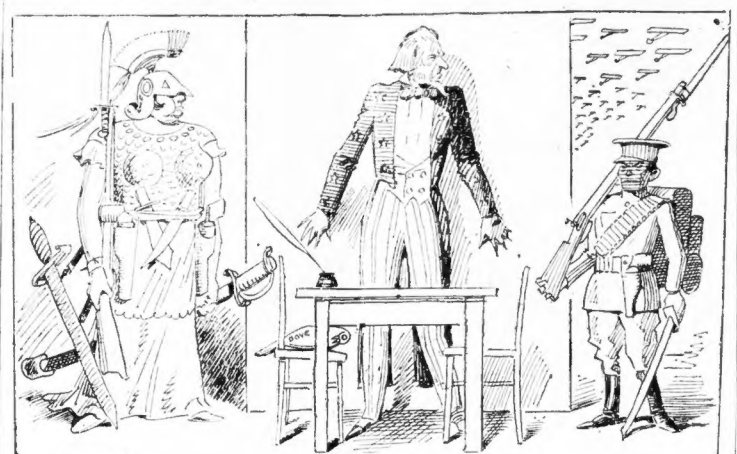

Dr. Harris Rogers of Baltimore has sent a radio message through the earth 5,000 miles to the Pacific coast and will now endeavor to communicate by radio with Europe also through the earth.

Scientists tell you that the "imponderable ether" is so dense that in comparison with its density the most solid substance known to us, such as solid steel or platinum, is like a fish net being dragged through the water.

The atoms in a lead spoon are as far apart in proportion to their size as the earth and the sun.

That helps you understand that the earth and the sun go through ether, like a fish net through water. And then the scientists tell you that the actual existence of the ether has never been proved except theoretically, and you are all unsettled again.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

THE subject thing that can happen to a woman it is to go through life looking for a thing to do and to succeed in finding one. No man need have any fear of not being "run down" by women so long as he sticks to his job.

Every woman is a potential Chinella, who is prepared at all times for some wonderful turn of fate—sudden marriage, sudden riches, sudden romance or sudden widowhood.

Love is an amorphous thing, so to speak, so that it is not possible to have one's freedom removed without being conscious of it. It's coming out of the ether, after the honeymoon, that is so painful.

The hard part of escaping from a "dangerous man" these days is to make him pursue you.

If man is a natural-born hunter, then woman is a natural-born prey—the only difference being that when a woman finally falls in love and lands her heart's desire, she loses all interest in the sport, as a "prey."

A man's jealousy makes a woman stop and think; a woman's jealousy makes a man run and drink.

The average woman spends so much time mentally rehearsing her opinion of her husband that when the curtain rises on a domestic quarrel she has all her "lines" letter-perfect.

A woman's anger at the women who flirt with her husband is usually tempered with pity and astonishment that they should be so hard up as to waste time on anybody so uninteresting.

A girl never "considers" a proposal of marriage nowadays—she just snatches at it!

Anticlimax in the jewelry line. I desire to commend you for your drive against the fake auctioneer. As a legislator, I am interested in the welfare of the State. Legislation cannot do away or care dishonest people from performing fraudulent transactions but it can punish them. Moreover, I am a firm believer in the principle of less government in business and more business in government. Hence, I do not believe we should, as a legislative body, interfere with any legitimate business. But every rule implies its exception.

By Aline Michaelis

"MUST live my life" so you could say. By day, as you take your child, as you go to your work, and you go through ether, like a fish net through water. And then the scientists tell you that the actual existence of the ether has never been proved except theoretically, and you are all unsettled again.

Just a Little Lift
Helping Hand Editor:
We have in the past helped a family where there are four little girls, ages one to five years, but our means are now such that we cannot do so anymore. The children need clothing and shoes. The stock will be arriving soon and infant's clothing would be very greatly appreciated. The father makes very small pay and they are temperamental and well deserving of all aid and just a little lift would work wonders. A sewing machine is greatly needed and a carpet sweeper.

MR. B.2
Helping Hand Editor:
I have seven children, boys 14, 13 and 4 and girls 12, 10 and 5. I have had lots of expense through sickness the past two years and am unable to buy them clothes. They would like to take part in the Easter concert, but have no decent clothes or shoes. The boys wear shoes size 6, 4 and 8 1/2 and girls 3, 2 1/2 and 1 1/2. I am handy at making over. I would appreciate help at any time after Easter, but would like to get something before I possible for the above reason. Mrs. Geo. A.

Helping Hand Editor:
I have seven children, boys 14, 13 and 4 and girls 12, 10 and 5. I have had lots of expense through sickness the past two years and am unable to buy them clothes. They would like to take part in the Easter concert, but have no decent clothes or shoes. The boys wear shoes size 6, 4 and 8 1/2 and girls 3, 2 1/2 and 1 1/2. I am handy at making over. I would appreciate help at any time after Easter, but would like to get something before I possible for the above reason. Mrs. Geo. A.

THE CONSERVATIVE AND THE RADICAL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A CONSERVATIVE is a man who does not believe in adopting any measure because it is new. In its extreme form, Conservatism is a valuation for things simply because they are old.

There is such a thing as carrying conservatism too far, as we should never make any progress if we valued a thing merely on account of its age.

The typical Conservative is, therefore, cruel, unjust, he grinds with the rents, he shoots one who steals his rabbits, he takes away her cow and chickens from the widow, he wants to imprison for debts, he beats his wife and drinks himself regularly under the table every evening. As a matter of fact, however, it is rare that conservatism goes to such extremes and the true Conservative is one who believes in a principle of growth. He believes that, in order to bear fruit, the tree of progress should not be separated from its roots.

He believes, with James Bryce, that no institution can ever have much influence upon humanity or its future which does not have its roots deep in the past.

He is for progress, but progress that keeps in touch with tradition and with custom.

He is opposed by the Radical. The Radical is one who values a thing merely because it is new. He is inclined to go too rapidly and to go anywhere so long as he is going.

The Radical constantly says, "Hurry up," just as the Conservative typically says, "Wait a minute."

The best kind of voter is one who combines conservatism and radicalism. He is not afraid of a thing because it is new and yet he would not adopt it if it had not some reasonable connection with the past. Extremes, in both cases, are to be avoided. They are destructive in their influence, and destructive conservatism is as bad as destructive radicalism. The ideal condition to arrive at is to combine both conservatism and radicalism with common sense.

MOST WONDERFUL STAR GIANT

By Garrett P. Serviss, Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

WIDE across the southern sky, in the early November evening, stretches the huge imaginary form of the celestial whale, Cetus. Across this pictured him in the third century before Christ:

"And yonder, distant from her towering form, The oncoming monster screeches. She is the basis of Thracian forests. Is stationed, while the south wind brings her foam."

The "Whale" is a constellation of stars. It is one of the largest of the constellations. It is one of the largest of the constellations. It is one of the largest of the constellations.
